

They all meet on the net in this place where they come to discuss -- what they discuss may or may not matter. The participants are from all walks of life, indeed from all over the world. Some are very creative. Artists, writers, musicians. Some wish they were creative and are stuck in clerical jobs or other kinds of work. Some are teachers, some are students.

One of the people is a singer and after a while in this place on the net he gains a fan. An obsessed fan who happens to be married. She tries and tries to come on to him to no avail, but does not give up. Her husband may or may not notice and maybe doesn't give a shit either way. But maybe he does. He keeps to himself and like to watch football and collect toy soldiers.

People come and go, but after a while a new person arrives on the scene and does everything she can to make herself noticed and noticed she is. Soon, she too discovers the singer and starts giving the original fan a run for her money.

She comes north and meets not only the original fan but the singer and a friend of the singer's. She goes back home, leaves her husband and announces her intention to move north. Next thing you know she starts an affair with the friend of the singer's and more than that hints of marriage, but she still has the singer on her mind.

She tells all this to fan #1 who quickly starts to resent her. Fan #1 tells all this to the singer, yes doesn't seem to realize the parallels between herself and fan #2. The singer of course who remains silent and detached through all this just sits back and watches and thinks Fan #1 is sensing major competition from Fan #2.

Fan #2 thinks the singer and her are good friends and she can't wait till she moves north so she can be near Fan #1 and the singer.

Meanwhile the singer's friend blows off Fan #2 though she is so blinded she doesn't even realize she's being blown off. She carries the friend's picture around and thinks she can make him settle down not realizing he has 3 or 4 other women he's regularly screwing.

Somewhere along the line someone's gonna get shot, but who?

Will fan #1 kill fan #2? Will fan #1 kill the singer? Will the husband burst out of his silence and kill everyone? Maybe the friend will be the one to take the hit when Fan #2 who is just as relentless as fan #1 discovers him with 2 other girlfriends?

The possibilities are endless.

Could this be a movie?